registration, was sorely tried to-day by the conduct of Berkman. The "Red" leader, resuming his examination of talesmen, developed a new line of immaterial questions, which the Court announced were being asked to delay the case.

Berkman ever seeks to learn the opinions of talesmen with regard to their social, philosophic, military and revolutionary views. Berkman asked one of the talesmen:

"Would you be prejudiced against a person who aided in a revolution in Russia, even though it might be illegal?"

The Judge, a bit nettled by a series of similar questions, halted the examination.

"I have been extremely patient with you during the past two days," remarked the Court, "but from now on I shall insist that you confine yourself to asking material questions. You have been sufficiently instructed as to the questions you may ask and in your persistence in asking immaterial questions I cannot but think you are seeking to delay this case."

Goldman and Berkman have armed themselves with sheaves of typewritten questions and when Berkman has exhausted himself Emma gets on the job. The famous "hypnotical question" framed by Jerome in the Thaw trial was childish in its simplicity compared to the involved, anarchistic-sounding queries propounded by the "Red" twain.

The weary task of the talesmen is appreciated by Judge Mayer. At yesterday's sitting session the Judge permitted the talesmen, not under examination, to read newspapers. To-day he brought even greater relief by announcing:

"I know how tiresome these proceedings must be to some of you jurors and I shall not require you to remain seated. You may stand up or walk about the courtroom if you desire."

It was like the well known seventh inning stretch at a ball game. Almost every talesman arose and stretched and then buried himself in a newspaper. A bit of ginger was injected into the case when Assistant United States Attorney Content made objection to questions Berkman asked. The Anarchist had inquired whether the talesman had read of him in the newspapers. The talesman had, but could not remember in what connection Berkman's name appeared.

"Was it in connection with robbery?" was it in connection with theft?" questioned Berkman.

Content's objections followed. Judge Mayer ruled that the questions were not proper. Berkman thought they were.

"Were you ever charged with robbery or theft?" inquired the Court. "No," shouted the Anarchist. "I have never been charged with any crime." Then after a slight hesitation, he added "of that order."

It had evidently occurred to Berkman that he had served a long prison term for the shooting of a Pittsburgh millionaire some years ago.

Another fact disclosed during the examination of talesmen is the number of men who confine their newspaper reading to headlines. Of all the talesmen thus far questioned none admitted to reading anything but headlines. One man admitted that he occasionally "skimmed through articles."

After Berkman had exhausted his supply of immaterial questions, as well as himself, Emma Goldman took up the harp. She had a large batch of typewritten sheets, but before she began her examination of newly impaneled talesmen she was warned by the Court that repetition of Berkman's inquiries would not be tolerated. She started to make a speech of protest to the court and began to cry out for her "rights," but the judge choked her off.

"I have been unusually patient," he stated, "but I will not permit this case to be dragged."

Columbia Students Will Be Sentenced Thursday. Judge Mayer in the Federal Court today announced that sentence of Owen Cattell and Charles Francis Phillips, the Columbia students convicted of anti-conspiracy conspiracy, will be pronounced next Thursday. The two were to have been sentenced to-day.

Winter Russell, one of the attorneys for the two students, was in court prepared to make a motion to set aside the jury's verdict. The motion will be made next Thursday. The students cannot be arraigned for sentence until the motion has been ruled upon.

Cattell, Phillips and Eleanor Wilson Parker, a Barnard College girl, were indicted on a conspiracy charge. It was maintained by the authorities that the three prepared a pamphlet opposing the selective draft law, urging young men not to register. Miss Parker was acquitted.

Misling Girls Under Arrest. Josephine Genovese, seventeen, of No. 415 East One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, and Julia Lizili, seventeen, of No. 424 East One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, were arrested to-day in South Norwalk, in company with Joseph Ferrel and Carmine Sarchitillo. The former girl disappeared on June 22, and her chum left for South Norwalk yesterday afternoon. Detectives McCafferty and Durshel assigned to the case when Josephine disappeared. They got a clue yesterday when Julia bought a ticket for South Norwalk.

CITY DEMOCRACY IS OUT FOR MITCHELL

Asking His Re-election, Calls Him
Best Mayor New York
Ever Had.

Six hundred delegates gathered last night in the Grand Central Palace perfected the organization of the City Committee of the City Democracy and pledged themselves to the re-election of "that splendid, courageous, independent and efficient Mayor, John Purroy Mitchell," under whom, the resolutions added, "the City of New York is now enjoying the best municipal Administration in its history." The Executive Committee was authorized "to take all proper and necessary steps to have his name placed on the official ballot."

In the declaration of principles, presented by John A. Wilbur and adopted with enthusiasm, it was protested that the "machinery of party government set up and run by Tammany Hall for party advantage and not for the public good is designed to stifle free party discussion and opinion and is utterly destitute of a real purpose to serve the city or the country."

Martin W. Littleton was chosen permanent Chairman, and Joseph R. Truesdale permanent Secretary. For Manhattan Benjamin Patterson was named Vice Chairman and Dr. Adolf Stein, Secretary; for Kings, A. Augustus Healy and Thomas F. Reddy; for Queens, J. J. Kindred and J. Gordon Noakes; for the Bronx, Thomas J. McGrath and Patrick J. McMahon; and for Richmond, Lester L. Callan and Howard Hillegas.

MAID, SUING MISTRESS,
GETS $12,572.77 JUDGMENT

She Proves in Court Mrs. Burnett, Aristocratic New Yorker, Borrowed From Her.

Julia Mulligan King of No. 310 East Fifty-eighth Street, for twenty-four years maid for Mrs. Agnes Sufferen Burnett, recovered a verdict for $12,572.77 in the Supreme Court yesterday. The sum represents a note given by Mrs. Burnett to her maid to cover various items of unpaid wages and loans made by the servant to her mistress from 1902 to 1912.

It was brought out at the trial that Miss King entered Mrs. Burnett's service in 1908, when she was eighteen years old. She left the Burnett house, No. 7 East Twelfth Street, in 1912. In the ten years previous she had advanced the money she recovered.

Mrs. Burnett appeared in court but did not take the stand. She is a granddaughter of the late Thomas Sufferen, and a sister of Edward N. Teller, Thomas Sufferen Teller and Mrs. Robert R. Livingston, all members of one of New York's oldest and most exclusive families.

Met Man at Movie and Ran Away With Him. Agnes Danaro, eighteen years old, of No. 117 Elizabeth Street, missing since May 5, was found to-day by Detective Castano. She wasn't abducted, she said, but left home for a man she met at a movie. He promised to marry her, but put her off, and finally deserted her two weeks ago.

SOLDIERS MUSTN'T SMOKE OR DRINK; MUST GET SHINES

Major Gen. O'Ryan's Drastic
Orders Go Into Effect
July 15.

All organization commanders of the National Guard in this State received orders from Major Gen. O'Ryan to-day to the effect that the use of liquors by officers and men in uniform will be prohibited after July 15, when the State troops are transferred to the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. The order against smoking while in uniform, it is explained, does not go into effect until July 15.

Further, the officers and men are cautioned to be punctilious in the matter of saluting and returning salutes. They must maintain soldierly bearings, have their shoes well polished and otherwise dress neatly while in public places.

The General also calls attention to the fact that men not in the Federal service are violating State and Federal laws by wearing the Regular Army or National Guard service uniforms.

"It would seem most desirable," says the General, "that men who belong to home defense associations and other quasi-military organizations should not seek to masquerade as soldiers. Both the Regular Army and National Guard have been criticised of late because apparently enlisted men have appeared in the streets yearning their uniforms and bearing themselves in an unmilitary manner." Secretary Benjamin Day of the Mayor's Home Defense Committee explained to an Evening World reporter this afternoon that the reason New York's list of names for the City Draft Exemption Boards had been delayed was on account of the commopolitan character of the districts to be dealt with. Careful selection had to prevail, said Mr. Day, as in many parts of the city men named as exemption-claim examiners might be in sympathy with their fellow-countrymen's desire to evade the draft and grant them undue favors. Mr. Day denied current reports that Gov. Whitman had not yet received the list of nominations from Greater New York.

"The lists for the Bronx, Queens and Richmond Boroughs were given to the Governor last Monday night," he said. "On the same day the complete lists of 189 boards, with an average of eight members each, for Manhattan and Brooklyn were despatched."

Mr. Day said that he was not at liberty to give out the names of the members of the various boards. These will be given out officially from either Washington or Albany some time next week.

Statements from Washington that reports from the New York City district had not reached there caused the official inquiry as to the delay.
